

5-Minute Rosary Meditations

(Mon. 06.07.2026) - 1.The First Joyful Mystery: The Annunciation of the Lord

An Engaging opening story

A little girl was once watching her grandmother sew a beautiful tapestry. From where the child stood, underneath the frame, all she could see were loose threads, knots, and tangled colours. It looked messy and without meaning. Curious, she asked, "Grandma, why are you making such a mess?" Her grandmother smiled and said, "Come upstairs." When the little girl looked from above, she saw a magnificent picture of flowers and birds. The tangled threads below had become a masterpiece from above. Our lives are often like those loose threads. We see confusion, suffering, delays, unanswered prayers, and uncertainty. God, however, sees the whole design.

A Gospel-based meditation

That was also true for Mary at the Annunciation. The Angel Gabriel greeted her with words she could never have expected: "Hail, full of grace." Mary did not understand everything. She asked, "How can this be?" She was not questioning God's power; she was seeking to understand His will. And when she received God's answer, she surrendered completely: "Behold, I am the handmaid of the Lord. Let it be done to me according to your word." That one sentence changed the history of the world. God did not force Mary. He waited for her free and loving "Yes." Heaven respected human freedom.

A Connection to the message of the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane

The Virgin of Revelation constantly reminds us of this same lesson. She calls us to conversion, to prayer, to fidelity to the Gospel, and to trust in God even when we cannot understand His plans. Like Mary, we are invited to say "yes" every day—not only in great moments, but also in the ordinary circumstances of family life, work, illness, disappointments, and hidden sacrifices. Every Rosary is another opportunity to renew that "yes." Every "Hail Mary" echoes the angel's greeting and invites us to unite our own hearts with Mary's heart.

A Reference to Bruno Cornacchiola the Founder Father of SACRI

Bruno Cornacchiola's conversion at Tre Fontane was, in a sense, his own Annunciation. Just as Mary welcomed God's word with her humble "yes," Bruno welcomed the message of the Virgin of Revelation with an obedient heart. From that moment, his life was transformed, showing that every sincere "yes" to God opens the door for His grace to accomplish far more than we could ever imagine.

A Practical spiritual application

Perhaps today the Lord is asking each of us for a simple act of trust. Maybe He is asking us to forgive someone, to return to prayer, to reconcile with a family member, to persevere in suffering, or to become more faithful witnesses of Christ. Like Mary, we may not see the whole picture. But God does.

A Memorable concluding story

There is an old story about a traveller who came upon three men cutting stones. He asked the first, "What are you doing?" He replied, "I'm cutting rocks." The second answered, "I'm earning my daily wage." The third looked up with joy and said, "I'm helping to build a cathedral." All three were doing the same work, but only one saw God's larger plan. Mary always saw beyond the immediate moment because she trusted God. Through the message of the Virgin of Revelation, she continues to teach us to look beyond today's struggles and to see God's plan unfolding in our lives. As we pray this decade, let us ask Our Lady of Revelation to obtain for us the grace to repeat with confidence, every day and in every circumstance:

"Lord, I may not understand everything, but like Mary, I trust You. Let Your will be done in my life." Our Father...

2. The Second Joyful Mystery: The Visitation of Mary to Elizabeth

(Mon. 03.08.2026)

An Engaging Opening Story

A missionary priest once shared a touching story. An elderly woman in his parish lived alone with poor health and few visitors. Every Wednesday afternoon another elderly parishioner quietly knocked on her door. She brought a loaf of bread, prayed a decade of the Rosary with her friend, listened to her worries, and then returned home.

When someone asked why she never missed a visit, she smiled and said, “If Our Lady hurried to Elizabeth, I can walk across the street.” Those simple words capture the heart of today’s mystery.

A Gospel-Based Meditation

After the Annunciation, Mary could have remained in Nazareth, reflecting on the extraordinary grace she had received. Instead, St. Luke tells us that “Mary set out and went with haste into the hill country” (Lk 1:39). Carrying Jesus in her womb, she travelled about 150 kilometres to help her elderly cousin Elizabeth. Her faith immediately became loving service.

When Mary arrived, everything changed. Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Spirit, the unborn John the Baptist leapt for joy, and Elizabeth praised God. No miracle was performed and no sermon preached. Christ simply entered the house through Mary's loving presence. The Visitation teaches us that wherever Jesus is carried, lives are transformed.

A Connection to the Message of the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane

The Virgin of Revelation gives us the same mission today. She invites us not only to pray the Rosary but to become living bearers of Christ. Prayer must always lead to charity, reconciliation, and faithful witness. Like Mary, we are sent to bring Christ into homes, families, and hearts that long for hope.

A Reference to Bruno Cornacchiola, the Founder Father of SACRI

After his conversion at Tre Fontane, Bruno Cornacchiola understood that authentic devotion to Mary always leads to Jesus and to service of others. He spent the rest of his life proclaiming the Gospel, defending the Catholic faith, and inviting countless people back to the Church. His example reminds us that every encounter with Mary should make us missionaries of Christ.

A Practical Spiritual Application

We sometimes imagine that evangelisation requires remarkable talents. Mary teaches something much simpler. We bring Christ through acts of kindness, forgiveness, prayer, a visit to someone who is lonely, a phone call to the discouraged, or by praying the Rosary with faith. These ordinary acts become extraordinary when Jesus is present within them.

A Memorable Concluding Story before the Our Father

A little boy once noticed that his mother always carried an extra sandwich whenever she left the house. Curious, he asked, "Why do you always take two?" She smiled and replied, "Because every day I ask Our Lady to lead me to someone who might be hungry." Most days, she found someone who needed it.

Mary lived the same way. She carried Jesus wherever she went, always ready to bring His love to those in need. Every time we pray the Rosary, the Virgin of Revelation fills our hearts with Christ and sends us to become His presence for someone else.

May we, like Mary, go "with haste," bringing Jesus wherever there is loneliness, sorrow, or darkness, so that many hearts may rejoice in His presence. Our Father...

(Mon. 31.09.2026) Third Joyful Mystery: The Birth of Jesus

An Engaging Opening Story:

A teacher once asked her students to bring something valuable to class. Some brought expensive watches, jewellery, or electronic gadgets. One little boy quietly placed a worn baby blanket on the table. When asked why, he replied, "When I was born very sick, my mother wrapped me in this blanket and prayed over me every night. It reminds me that I was loved before I owned anything." The room fell silent. Everyone realised that the greatest treasures are not things but love freely given.

A Gospel-Based Meditation:

The Birth of Jesus reveals precisely that kind of love. The eternal Son of God entered our world with empty hands. He chose neither a palace nor wealth, but a humble stable in Bethlehem. Wrapped in swaddling clothes and laid in a manger because there was no room at the inn, He showed that God's greatness is revealed through humility and self-giving love. Mary accepted the poverty of Bethlehem without complaint, trusting completely in the Father's plan. Joseph faithfully protected his little family. The shepherds hurried to adore the Child, while later the Wise Men followed the star from distant lands. Together they proclaim that Jesus came for every person—the poor and the rich, the simple and the learned, those nearby and those far away. In Bethlehem, heaven opened its doors to the whole human family.

A Connection to the Message of the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane:

At Tre Fontane, the Virgin of Revelation called humanity to return to God through conversion, prayer, penance, and fidelity to Christ and His Church. Bethlehem beautifully explains that invitation. The Child lying in the manger is the Father's gift to His wandering children. God did not wait for humanity to become perfect; He came Himself to seek us. Every Rosary leads us back to that stable, where we discover that the road home always begins with welcoming Jesus into our hearts.

A Reference to Bruno Cornacchiola, the Founder Father of SACRI:

Bruno Cornacchiola experienced this truth personally. Before meeting the Virgin of Revelation, his heart had become closed to Christ. But through Mary's maternal guidance, he encountered Jesus anew and returned joyfully to the Father's house. Like the shepherds, Bruno responded to God's invitation with simplicity and became a witness, spending the rest of his life leading others to Christ. His conversion reminds us that no heart is too poor or too distant for the Infant Jesus to enter.

A Practical Spiritual Application:

Bethlehem invites us to prepare not only our homes but also our hearts. Perhaps our hearts resemble the stable—filled with worries, disappointments, or hidden sins. Yet Jesus is not looking for perfection; He is looking for welcome. Today let us make room for Him through a sincere confession, a moment of silent prayer, an act of forgiveness, or a hidden act of charity. Whenever Christ is welcomed, even the poorest heart becomes a living Bethlehem.

A Memorable Concluding Story before the Our Father:

A family once kept an empty chair beside their Christmas crib throughout the season. Visitors often asked why no one sat there. The grandfather would smile and answer, "That chair reminds us that Jesus is the most important guest in our home. If we forget Him, every other celebration loses its meaning."

As we pray this decade, let us ask Mary, the Virgin of Revelation, to help us keep a place for Jesus at the centre of our hearts, our families, and our lives, so that He may truly be born in us each day. Our Father...

05.10.2026 – The Fourth Joyful Mystery: The Presentation of the Lord

1. An Engaging Opening Story

A missionary once visited a poor village where a young couple brought their first child to church. After the blessing, the father quietly said to the priest, "This child is God's gift to us. We will care for him with all our love, but we want him to belong to God before he belongs to us." Those simple words touched everyone present. They remind us that the greatest love is not possessive but generous. Every blessing we receive is ultimately entrusted to us by God.

2. A Gospel-Based Meditation

This is the spirit we find in today's mystery. Forty days after Jesus' birth, Mary and Joseph journey to the Temple in Jerusalem to present Him to the Lord according to the Law of Moses. Although they are poor and can offer only two turtledoves, they bring the greatest treasure ever given to humanity—the Son of God.

Their offering teaches us that God looks first at the heart. In the Temple, the elderly Simeon and the prophetess Anna recognize what many others cannot see. Years of faithful prayer have prepared their eyes to recognize the Messiah hidden in an ordinary infant. Simeon joyfully proclaims Jesus as "a light for revelation to the Gentiles," yet he also foretells that a sword will pierce Mary's heart. Even in this joyful mystery, the Cross is already visible. Love and sacrifice always walk together.

Like Simeon and Anna, we are invited to recognize Christ, who still comes quietly—in the Eucharist, in Scripture, in the poor, in our families, and in the ordinary events of daily life.

3. A Connection to the Message of the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane

The Virgin of Revelation continually calls us to conversion, prayer, fidelity to the Church, and the daily Rosary. She teaches us to become people whose hearts are purified by prayer so that, like Simeon and Anna, we never fail to recognize Jesus when He comes. She also invites us to imitate Mary by placing everything into God's hands: our families, our worries, our plans, our sufferings, and our future. Nothing offered to God is ever lost.

4. A Reference to Bruno Cornacchiola, the Founder Father of SACRI

Bruno Cornacchiola experienced this mystery in his own life. After his conversion at Tre Fontane, he no longer tried to control his life according to his own ideas. He presented himself completely to God through the hands of the Virgin of Revelation. His family, his work, his apostolate, and every sacrifice became an offering to the Lord. Like Mary in the Temple, Bruno discovered that true freedom comes not from keeping everything for ourselves but from giving everything back to God.

5. A Practical Spiritual Application

As we pray this decade, let us spiritually place on the altar everything we treasure: our spouses, children, grandchildren, those who have drifted away from the faith, the sick, the lonely, and those burdened by fear or uncertainty. Each morning we can simply pray, "Lord, everything I have and everything I am belongs to You. Use me today for Your glory." Such a prayer transforms ordinary life into a continual offering.

6. A Memorable Concluding Story before the Our Father

A little girl once watched the offertory procession during Mass. Looking worried, she whispered to her mother, "We forgot to bring a gift for Jesus." Her mother smiled gently and replied, "We did bring one. We brought ourselves." The child smiled with understanding. That is the gift God desires most—not simply what we possess, but our hearts. As we pray this mystery, let us place ourselves beside Mary and Joseph and offer our whole lives to the Father with Jesus.

Our Father...

02.11.2026 – The Fifth Joyful Mystery: The Finding of the Child Jesus in the Temple

An Engaging Opening Story

A tour guide once led visitors through Notre-Dame in Paris. While everyone admired the cathedral, a little boy wandered away. His parents searched in panic until they found him quietly kneeling before the Blessed Sacrament. When his mother asked, "Why did you leave us?" he simply replied, "I wasn't lost. I knew Jesus was here." His innocent words remind us that the safest place is always in the presence of the Lord.

A Gospel-Based Meditation

In this mystery, Mary and Joseph experience every parent's fear. On their journey home from Jerusalem, they discover that Jesus is missing. After three anxious days, they find Him in the Temple among the teachers, listening, asking questions, and astonishing them with His wisdom.

When Mary asks, "Son, why have you done this to us?" Jesus replies, "Did you not know that I must be in my Father's house?" (Lk 2:49). His first recorded words reveal that His life is completely centred on the Father's will.

We, too, sometimes feel that God is distant. Prayer becomes dry, suffering weakens our faith, and we wonder where Jesus is. Yet this mystery reminds us that He is never truly lost. Those who seek Him with sincere hearts will find Him in the Eucharist, Sacred Scripture, prayer, and the Church.

A Connection to the Message of the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane

At Tre Fontane, the Virgin of Revelation called humanity back to the Father's house. She urged people to return to Sacred Scripture, receive the Sacraments faithfully, pray the Rosary, and remain united with the one Church founded by Christ.

Like Mary searching for Jesus, Our Lady teaches us never to stop seeking Him, even in times of doubt. Every Rosary becomes a journey that leads us back to Christ.

A Reference to Bruno Cornacchiola, the Founder Father of SACRI

Bruno Cornacchiola searched for truth in the wrong places, rejecting the Catholic faith. But on 12 April 1947, at Tre Fontane, the Virgin of Revelation led him back to Christ. Like Mary and Joseph finding Jesus in the Temple, Bruno rediscovered the Lord in His Church. His conversion inspired a lifetime of prayer, evangelization, and the foundation of SACRI, helping others return to the Father's house.

A Practical Spiritual Application

This mystery asks us: Where do I seek lasting peace? The world offers success, possessions, and popularity, but only Christ satisfies the deepest longing of the heart.

This week, spend a few extra minutes before the Blessed Sacrament, read a short Gospel passage each day, or pray one decade of the Rosary slowly with your family. If someone you love has drifted from the faith, accompany them with prayer rather than criticism.

A Memorable Concluding Story before the Our Father

A missionary once asked an elderly convert, "What finally brought you back to God?" The man smiled and answered, "Whenever I wandered away, I found that God had never stopped waiting for me." As we pray this decade, let us ask the Virgin of Revelation to lead our children, families, and all who have wandered from the faith back to Jesus. May we always seek Him and rejoice in finding Him in the Father's house.

Our Father...

5-Minute Rosary Meditation (General Introduction for the Joyful Mysteries)

An Engaging Opening Story

A young artist was once asked how he created such beautiful stained-glass windows. He replied, "Each piece of coloured glass seems ordinary by itself. Some are bright, some are dark, and some even appear broken. But when they are placed together according to the master's design and the light shines through them, they become a beautiful image."

Our lives are much the same. Some days bring joy, others sacrifice or uncertainty. Yet God sees the whole picture. The Joyful Mysteries invite us to see our lives through His loving plan.

A Gospel-Based Meditation

The Joyful Mysteries lead us through the hidden years of Jesus' life: the Annunciation, the Visitation, the Birth of Christ, the Presentation in the Temple, and the Finding of the Child Jesus. Together they reveal that God often works quietly through ordinary people and everyday events.

Mary's generous "Yes," Elizabeth's joyful welcome, the poverty of Bethlehem, the faithful offering in the Temple, and the search that ended in finding Jesus all proclaim one truth: true joy is found whenever we welcome God and embrace His will.

These mysteries teach us that holiness grows through daily faithfulness. God enters our homes, our work, our relationships, our joys and our struggles, transforming ordinary life with His grace.

A Connection to the Message of the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane

The Virgin of Revelation continues to call us to these same Gospel virtues: conversion, prayer, fidelity to Sacred Scripture, love for the Rosary, and faithfulness to Christ and His Church. Like Mary, she teaches us to trust God even when His plans are hidden.

Every Rosary renews our own "yes" to God and helps us welcome Christ more deeply into our hearts, our families, and our daily lives.

A Reference to Bruno Cornacchiola, the Founder Father of SACRI

The life of Bruno Cornacchiola beautifully reflects the Joyful Mysteries.

Through the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane, his heart was transformed by God's grace. His conversion became the beginning of a life dedicated to prayer, evangelisation, and faithful service.

Like Mary, Bruno welcomed God's call with humility and allowed Christ to reshape his life. His example reminds us that every Rosary should lead us to a deeper love for Jesus and a joyful witness to the Gospel.

A Practical Spiritual Application

As we begin these Joyful Mysteries, let us ask where God is inviting us to trust Him more. Perhaps He is calling us to forgive, to pray more faithfully, to serve our families with greater love, or to carry today's crosses with hope. Every small act of obedience allows Christ to grow within us.

A Memorable Concluding Story before the Our Father

An old gardener was once asked why his garden flourished. He smiled and replied, "Each morning I open the gate, let in the sunlight, and faithfully care for the plants. God gives the growth."

The Joyful Mysteries teach us the same lesson. We may not control every circumstance, but we can open our hearts to God's grace each day. When we trust Him as Mary did, our ordinary lives become places where Christ is born, welcomed, and shared with others.

As we pray these Joyful Mysteries, let us ask the Virgin of Revelation to obtain for us the grace to welcome Jesus more deeply each day, to trust God's loving plan, and to become joyful witnesses of His Gospel.

Our Father...

13.07.2026 – The First Sorrowful Mystery: The Agony of Jesus in the Garden

An Engaging Opening Story

A sailor was caught in a violent storm far from shore. The waves battered his small boat, so he tied himself to the mast to avoid being swept into the sea. When rescuers later asked how he survived, he replied, "I could not control the storm, but I could hold on to what would save me."

Life also brings storms beyond our control—illness, family struggles, grief, uncertainty, or hidden suffering. In those moments, we are called to hold firmly to Christ.

A Gospel-Based Meditation

Tonight we enter the Garden of Gethsemane with Jesus. Knowing that betrayal, suffering, and death were near, He withdrew to pray. Saint Luke tells us that His anguish was so great that "His sweat became like drops of blood falling to the ground." Jesus fully experienced fear, sorrow, and loneliness.

Yet He prayed the words that changed history: "Father, if You are willing, take this cup away from me; nevertheless, not my will, but Yours be done."

The disciples, invited to watch and pray, fell asleep. We too become distracted, discouraged, or spiritually drowsy. Still, Jesus patiently invites us to remain with Him. Every Rosary is our loving response to His question: "Could you not keep watch with me?"

A Connection to the Message of the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane

The Virgin of Revelation leads us into the heart of Gethsemane. She calls us to conversion, prayer, penance, and fidelity to the Church founded by her Son. These are the path to praying with Jesus, "Your will be done."

Whenever we forgive, return to the sacraments, persevere in prayer, or entrust our fears to God, we walk beside Christ in the Garden. Mary reminds us that trust is stronger than fear and that obedience brings lasting peace.

A Reference to Bruno Cornacchiola, the Founder Father of SACRI

Bruno Cornacchiola experienced his own Gethsemane. Once determined to oppose the Catholic faith, he was transformed through the Virgin of Revelation. Accepting God's will required sacrifice. He endured misunderstanding and many trials, yet faithfully spread Mary's message with humility and courage. His life shows that true conversion begins when we surrender our own plans to Christ.

A Practical Spiritual Application

As we pray this mystery, let us place our own Gethsemane before the Lord—our worries for our family, illness, loneliness, difficult decisions, or loved ones who have drifted from the faith. This week, spend a few quiet moments each day praying: "Father, not my will, but Yours be done." That prayer may not remove the cross, but it gives us the grace to carry it with hope.

A Memorable Concluding Story before the Our Father

A stained-glass window looks dull from outside a church, but inside, when sunlight shines through it, it glows with breathtaking beauty. Our lives may seem dark when seen only through suffering. But when Christ's light shines through our trials, their hidden purpose is revealed.

May the Virgin of Revelation help us remain faithful beside Jesus in His agony, trusting that beyond every Gethsemane, God is already preparing the joy of Easter.

Our Father...

10.08.2026 – The Second Sorrowful Mystery: The Scourging at the Pillar

1. An Engaging Opening Story

A sculptor was once asked how he created beautiful statues from rough marble. He replied, “I simply remove what does not belong.” Though every strike of the hammer seemed harsh, each blow revealed the hidden masterpiece.

Our lives can be like that. Trials, disappointments, and suffering often seem meaningless, yet in God's hands they can shape us into the people He created us to be.

2. A Gospel-Based Meditation

In this Second Sorrowful Mystery, we stand beside Jesus at the pillar. Although Pilate declared Him innocent, he handed Him over to be scourged. Roman soldiers cruelly tore His sacred flesh, while the One who healed the sick and forgave sinners silently accepted the punishment.

Jesus suffered not because He lacked power, but because He freely chose to save us. Every wound reveals the depth of His love. As Isaiah foretold, “By His wounds we are healed” (Isaiah 53:5). Christ accepted our punishment so that we might receive forgiveness, peace, and eternal life.

3. A Connection to the Message of the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane

At Tre Fontane, the Virgin of Revelation called the world to conversion, prayer, and penance. She reminded us that sin wounds our friendship with God and brings suffering into the world. Every selfish act, every lie, every hatred, and every refusal to love leaves its mark on Christ.

Yet Mary's message is one of hope. She points us to the mercy flowing from her Son's wounds and invites us to return to Him with sincere repentance. No sin is greater than His mercy. Every Rosary prayed with faith leads us from sin to healing.

4. A Reference to Bruno Cornacchiola, the Founder Father of SACRI

Bruno Cornacchiola personally experienced this mercy. Once determined to oppose the Church and the Blessed Virgin, he encountered Mary at Tre Fontane, who led him back to Jesus. His life was completely transformed. Our Founder Father of SACRI faithfully carried this message despite misunderstanding and sacrifice. Like Christ at the pillar, he believed that suffering accepted with love can help bring souls to God and strengthen the unity of the Church.

5. A Practical Spiritual Application

This mystery invites us to imitate the patience of Jesus. We may not endure scourging, but we all experience suffering through criticism, illness, loneliness, family struggles, or disappointment. Instead of resentment, Christ calls us to respond with forgiveness and trust.

Today, let us unite one hidden suffering with the wounds of Jesus. Offer a difficulty without complaint, forgive someone who has hurt you, or pray for a person who has misunderstood you. United with Christ, our crosses become channels of grace.

6. A Memorable Concluding Story before the Our Father

A missionary doctor once treated a boy whose back was covered with scars from years of abuse. Looking at them, he said, “These wounds tell a sad story.” The boy smiled and replied, “They also tell another story—that I survived because someone loved me enough to save me.”

The wounds of Jesus tell the greatest story of all—the story of victorious love. Every scar proclaims that we are loved beyond measure. May the Virgin of Revelation lead us to place our wounds into Christ's hands, so that by His wounds we may be healed and become instruments of His mercy.

Our Father...

14.09.2026 – The Third Sorrowful Mystery: The Crowning with Thorns

1. An Engaging Opening Story

A violin maker displayed two violins in his workshop. One was covered with gold and jewels but produced a harsh sound. The other was plain and worn, yet when played it filled the room with beautiful music. A visitor chose the decorated violin, but the craftsman smiled and said, “Beauty on the outside does not make beautiful music. What matters is what is within.”

We are often attracted by success, wealth, and popularity. Yet the greatest King the world has ever known wore not a crown of gold but a crown of thorns.

2. A Gospel-Based Meditation

In this Third Sorrowful Mystery, we enter the Praetorium with Jesus. After the scourging, the soldiers weave a crown of thorns, press it onto His head, clothe Him in purple, place a reed in His hand, and mock Him: “Hail, King of the Jews!” They strike Him repeatedly, driving the thorns deeper.

More painful than the wounds was the humiliation. The eternal Son of God willingly accepted ridicule from those He had created. He answered hatred with silence, violence with patience, and mockery with love.

The crown of thorns reveals humanity's deepest wound—pride. We seek honour, recognition, and our own way, but Jesus reveals a different kingship. His power is humility, His throne is the Cross, and His victory is love.

3. A Connection to the Message of the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane

At Tre Fontane, the Virgin of Revelation appeared with heavenly dignity, yet her message was one of humility, conversion, prayer, Sacred Scripture, and fidelity to the Church. She always directed souls to her crucified Son.

She invites us to choose between the passing crowns of the world and the lasting crown of faithful discipleship. The road to eternal glory passes through humility, repentance, and trust in Christ.

4. A Reference to Bruno Cornacchiola, the Founder Father of SACRI

Bruno Cornacchiola knew the danger of pride. Convinced he possessed the truth, he opposed the Catholic Church and devotion to Our Lady. But at Tre Fontane, the Virgin of Revelation gently led him to Jesus.

His life was transformed. The proud opponent became a humble apostle. As Founder Father of SACRI, he faithfully proclaimed Mary's message, accepting sacrifices and misunderstandings with humility and perseverance.

5. A Practical Spiritual Application

This mystery invites us to examine the crowns we seek. Do we desire praise, resist admitting mistakes, or struggle to forgive? Today, let us imitate Jesus through one hidden act of humility: apologise sincerely, accept criticism peacefully, serve without seeking recognition, forgive an old hurt, or quietly help someone in need. Ask the Virgin of Revelation to remove every thorn of pride and fill our hearts with the humility of Christ.

6. A Memorable Concluding Story before the Our Father

An elderly nun was once asked what medal she had received after serving the poor for over sixty years. Smiling, she pointed to the crucifix around her neck and said, "This is enough. If I wear His crown on earth, He will give me His crown in heaven."

May we never seek crowns that fade, but faithfully follow Christ, the King crowned with thorns, until He welcomes us into His everlasting Kingdom.

Our Father...

12.10.2026 – The Fourth Sorrowful Mystery: Jesus Carries His Cross

1. An Engaging Opening Story

A guide once led pilgrims along a steep mountain path. An elderly woman struggled with her heavy backpack. A young man quietly carried it for her, and together they reached the summit. With tears she thanked him. He smiled and said, “The mountain was easier because we climbed it together.”

Life is much the same. Our burdens become lighter when someone helps us carry them. In this mystery, Jesus carries His Cross for us and teaches us to help one another.

2. A Gospel-Based Meditation

After the scourging, the crowning with thorns, and His unjust condemnation, Jesus began His painful journey to Calvary. The Cross rested on His wounded shoulders, but His greatest burden was the sins of humanity. As Isaiah foretold, “The Lord laid on Him the iniquity of us all” (Isaiah 53:6).

Along the way, some mocked Him while others remained indifferent. Yet Simon of Cyrene helped carry the Cross, and Veronica courageously wiped the face of Jesus. Though they could not remove His suffering, they offered compassion and love. Their example reminds us that every disciple is called to share in Christ's saving work through kindness, courage, and faithful service.

3. A Connection to the Message of the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane

The Virgin of Revelation calls us to conversion, prayer, penance, and fidelity to Christ and His Church. She reminds us that there is no Easter without Calvary. Every Rosary prayed with faith helps us carry our daily crosses with hope. Mary does not promise a life without suffering, but she assures us that when we remain close to her Son, we never carry our crosses alone. She walks beside us as she walked beside Jesus on the road to Calvary.

4. A Reference to Bruno Cornacchiola, the Founder Father of SACRI

After his conversion at Tre Fontane, Bruno Cornacchiola discovered that following Christ involved sacrifice, misunderstanding, and hidden trials. Yet he remained faithful to the mission entrusted to him by the Virgin of Revelation. As Founder Father of SACRI, he taught that holiness is found in daily fidelity—accepting sacrifices with love, praying the Rosary faithfully, and serving others with humility. Like Simon of Cyrene, he showed that the Cross accepted with Christ leads to peace and eternal joy.

5. A Practical Spiritual Application

Each of us carries a cross: illness, family struggles, loneliness, disappointments, or hidden worries. Jesus invites us to carry our own cross with trust and also become a Simon or a Veronica for others. A kind word, a visit to the sick, a phone call, forgiveness, or a patient listening ear can lighten another person's burden. Every hidden act of love is precious in God's sight.

6. A Memorable Concluding Story before the Our Father

A little boy saw a butterfly struggling to leave its cocoon. Wanting to help, he cut it open. The butterfly emerged but never flew because the struggle was needed to strengthen its wings.

God does not always remove our crosses because they help us grow in faith, hope, and love. As we pray this decade, may the Virgin of Revelation help us embrace our crosses, support those who suffer, and faithfully follow Jesus until we share in the glory of His Resurrection.

Our Father...

09.11.2026 – The Fifth Sorrowful Mystery: The Crucifixion and Death of Our Lord Jesus Christ

1. An Engaging Opening Story

A missionary priest visited an elderly woman nearing the end of her life. A simple crucifix hung opposite her bed. He asked if she wanted it moved closer. She smiled and replied, “I have looked at that Cross every day for over sixty years. Now I carry it in my heart. It has taught me that no suffering is wasted when united with Christ.” Her words remind us that the Cross is not only a sign of suffering but the world's greatest sign of hope.

2. A Gospel-Based Meditation

On Calvary, Jesus fulfilled the Father's plan of salvation. His hands that blessed and healed were pierced with nails. His feet that proclaimed the Kingdom were fastened to the Cross. Rejected by many and abandoned by most of His disciples, He continued to love. From the Cross He prayed, “Father, forgive them.” He promised Paradise to the repentant thief, entrusted His Mother to John and to the whole Church, and finally prayed, “Father, into your hands I commend my spirit.” What seemed humanity's greatest defeat became God's greatest victory. Through His death, Christ conquered sin, overcame death, and opened the gates of eternal life.

3. A Connection to the Message of the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane

The Virgin of Revelation always leads us to Calvary, where we discover the fullness of God's love. At Tre Fontane, she called the world to conversion, prayer, penance, fidelity to Sacred Scripture, the Eucharist, and the Church. She never points to herself but always to Jesus. Standing with Mary beneath the Cross, we learn that true devotion to her always deepens our love for Christ. Every Rosary becomes a journey to Calvary, where we pray for sinners, families, the Church, and peace through the saving power of Christ's Precious Blood.

4. A Reference to Bruno Cornacchiola, the Founder Father of SACRI

Bruno Cornacchiola experienced the transforming power of the Cross. Once hostile to the Catholic faith, he encountered the Virgin of Revelation, who led him to the crucified and risen Christ. His life was completely changed.

As Founder Father of SACRI, he spent the rest of his life proclaiming that Mary always brings souls to Jesus. His witness reminds us that at the Cross, hatred becomes forgiveness, unbelief becomes faith, and sinners become saints.

5. A Practical Spiritual Application

Each of us carries a cross: illness, loneliness, family struggles, disappointments, or concern for loved ones. Jesus does not promise a life without suffering, but He promises never to abandon us.

Today let us place our crosses at Calvary. Forgive someone who has hurt you, remain close to a suffering person as Mary remained with Jesus, and renew your trust in the Father's love. United with Christ's Cross, our sufferings become channels of grace.

6. A Memorable Concluding Story before the Our Father

During the Second World War, Coventry Cathedral in England was destroyed by bombing. Among the ruins, workers found two charred wooden beams lying in the shape of a cross. They placed them in the sanctuary with the words, "Father, Forgive." That Cross became a lasting symbol of reconciliation and hope.

As we pray this final decade, let us stand beside Mary at the foot of the Cross. Let us thank Jesus for loving us to the end and ask for the grace to forgive, trust, and love as He did. Through the intercession of the Virgin of Revelation, may we remain faithful until we share forever in the joy of His Resurrection.

20.07.2026 – The First Glorious Mystery: The Resurrection of Our Lord

1. An Engaging Opening Story

After a devastating earthquake in northern Italy, a village church lay in ruins. On Easter morning, the villagers gathered among the rubble. An elderly man carried the only object recovered intact—a simple wooden cross. Placing it firmly on the ground, he said, “The church has fallen, but Christ has not. If He walked out of His tomb, He can rebuild our lives too.”

His words reminded everyone that while buildings may crumble, faith in the Risen Christ can never be buried. Easter teaches us that God brings new life where hope seems lost.

2. A Gospel-Based Meditation

Before sunrise, Mary Magdalene and the other women came to Jesus' tomb expecting sorrow. Instead, they found the stone rolled away and heard the angel proclaim, “Why do you seek the living among the dead? He is not here; He has risen!” (Luke 24:5–6). The Resurrection is the foundation of our faith. The Cross became the doorway to victory. Sin and death did not have the final word—God's love did. The Risen Jesus called Mary Magdalene by name, forgave Peter after his denial, and greeted the fearful apostles with, “Peace be with you.” His Resurrection assures us that no failure is beyond God's mercy and no darkness is stronger than His light.

3. A Connection to the Message of the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane

The Virgin of Revelation brought this same Easter message at Tre Fontane. She directed all hearts to her risen Son and called people to conversion, prayer, fidelity to the Gospel, and trust in God's mercy. Her message is one of hope. No sinner is beyond redemption, no family beyond healing, and no heart beyond the transforming grace of the Risen Lord. She invites us to become joyful witnesses of Christ's victory over sin and death.

4. A Reference to Bruno Cornacchiola, the Founder Father of SACRI

Bruno Cornacchiola experienced the power of the Resurrection personally. Once an opponent of the Catholic Church, he encountered the Virgin of Revelation and was led to Christ. His life was completely transformed. As Founder Father of SACRI, he reminded everyone that Christianity is not simply a set of teachings but a living relationship with the Risen Jesus. His conversion shows that Christ still rolls away the stones that imprison human hearts.

5. A Practical Spiritual Application

Each of us carries heavy stones—fear, grief, discouragement, family struggles, or loved ones who have drifted from the faith. Easter calls us never to lose hope. Let us pray for those far from God, forgive those who have hurt us, and bring the peace of the Risen Christ into our families and communities. The empty tomb reminds us that God's grace is always stronger than our greatest struggles.

6. A Memorable Concluding Story before the Our Father

A little girl visited her grandmother's grave every Easter morning. Someone asked why she always came that day. She smiled and replied, "I'm not looking for Grandma here. I only come to remember that this isn't where her story ended." She understood the heart of the Gospel. For those who belong to Christ, every grave is only the doorway to eternal life. As we pray this First Glorious Mystery, may the Virgin of Revelation strengthen our faith in the Risen Lord, so that, with Bruno Cornacchiola and the whole Church, we may joyfully proclaim: Christ is risen! He is truly risen! Alleluia!

Our Father...

17.08.2026 – The Second Glorious Mystery: The Ascension of Our Lord

1. An Engaging Opening Story

A young eagle was raised among chickens. It scratched the ground and believed hopping over a fence was the greatest achievement possible. One day, a naturalist carried it to a mountaintop and whispered, “You were made for the skies, not the dust.” The eagle spread its wings, caught the wind, and soared into the heavens, discovering its true destiny. Like that eagle, we can become so focused on earthly concerns that we forget we were created for heaven.

2. A Gospel-Based Meditation

Forty days after His Resurrection, Jesus led His disciples to the Mount of Olives. After teaching them and appearing to them, He gave His final command: “Go, therefore, and make disciples of all nations” (Matthew 28:19). As they watched, Jesus ascended into heaven. While they stood gazing upward, the angels asked, “Men of Galilee, why do you stand looking up toward heaven?” (Acts 1:11). Their hearts belonged to heaven, but their mission remained on earth. The Ascension is not Christ leaving us behind. He entered the Father's glory carrying our human nature with Him and promised, “I go to prepare a place for you” (John 14:2). Heaven is our true homeland, and every step of life leads us toward that eternal home.

3. A Connection to the Message of the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane

The Virgin of Revelation reminded Bruno Cornacchiola that genuine faith always leads to mission. She called him to conversion, prayer, fidelity to Sacred Scripture, and love for the Church. Like the angels after the Ascension, she sent him to share the truth he had received. Her message remains urgent today. We are not called simply to admire Christ but to witness to Him through our words, our families, our work, and lives transformed by grace.

4. A Reference to Bruno Cornacchiola, the Founder Father of SACRI

Bruno faithfully accepted that mission. Once an opponent of the Catholic faith, he became a courageous apostle of the Virgin of Revelation.

As Founder Father of SACRI, he dedicated his life to spreading Mary's message through prayer, catechesis, charity, and fidelity to the Church. Like the apostles after the Ascension, he understood that every Christian is sent to bring others to Christ.

5. A Practical Spiritual Application

Many people think they have little to offer because they feel too old, too young, or too ordinary. Yet God delights in working through generous hearts.

Every Rosary prayed, every act of forgiveness, every patient word, every hidden sacrifice, and every invitation to return to the sacraments becomes part of Christ's mission. Let our hearts remain fixed on heaven while our hands faithfully serve others.

6. A Memorable Concluding Story before the Our Father

A lighthouse never sails out to rescue ships, yet countless sailors reach safety because its light shines steadily through every storm.

Jesus has ascended into heaven, but He has left His light in us. Whenever we live with faith, hope, charity, and fidelity, we become beacons leading others toward their true home. May the Virgin of Revelation help us keep our eyes on heaven, our hearts united with Christ, and our lives devoted to His mission until He welcomes us into the Father's house.

Our Father...

21.09.2026 – The Third Glorious Mystery: The Descent of the Holy Spirit

1. An Engaging Opening Story

A music teacher gave a simple flute to a young student. The child struggled to produce a clear sound. Then the teacher took the same flute, breathed into it, and filled the room with beautiful music. She smiled and said, “The instrument did not change. The difference was the breath within it.” Our lives are like that flute. Without the Holy Spirit we remain weak, but when God breathes His Spirit into us, ordinary people become extraordinary witnesses of His love.

2. A Gospel-Based Meditation

After Jesus ascended into heaven, the apostles gathered in the Upper Room with Mary, praying and waiting for the Father's promise. On Pentecost, a mighty wind filled the house, tongues of fire rested upon them, and they were filled with the Holy Spirit (Acts 2:1–4). Everything changed. Peter, who had denied Jesus, now boldly proclaimed the Gospel. Fear became courage, doubt became faith, and weakness became strength. The same Holy Spirit lives in the Church today. Through Baptism and Confirmation He fills us with His gifts—wisdom, understanding, counsel, fortitude, knowledge, piety, and fear of the Lord—so that we may witness to Christ in our daily lives.

3. A Connection to the Message of the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane

The Virgin of Revelation teaches that true renewal begins with conversion. At Tre Fontane she called us to prayer, fidelity to the Church, love for Sacred Scripture, and sincere repentance. These are possible only through the Holy Spirit. As Mary prayed with the apostles before Pentecost, she continues to pray for the Church today, asking the Spirit to renew our hearts. Every Rosary prayed with faith opens us more deeply to His grace.

4. A Reference to Bruno Cornacchiola, the Founder Father of SACRI

Bruno Cornacchiola experienced a modern Pentecost. Once hostile to the Catholic Church, he encountered the Virgin of Revelation and was transformed by the Holy Spirit into a devoted witness of Christ. The Founder Father of SACRI often taught that every apostolic work must begin with prayer. Without the Holy Spirit our efforts remain merely human; with Him, even small acts bear lasting fruit for God's Kingdom.

5. A Practical Spiritual Application

Pentecost invites us to ask: What part of my life is still closed to God? Is it fear, anger, discouragement, unforgiveness, or indifference? Today let us open those doors to the Holy Spirit. Begin each day by praying, "Come, Holy Spirit." Remain faithful to daily prayer, the Eucharist, frequent Confession, Sacred Scripture, and the Rosary. As we welcome the Spirit, His peace, joy, and courage will shine through us.

6. A Memorable Concluding Story before the Our Father

A village depended on an old windmill to draw water. One summer it stopped working. The people repaired its wheels and gears, but nothing happened. An elderly farmer looked up and said, "The problem is not the mill. There is no wind." When the breeze returned, the sails turned again and fresh water flowed.

Our hearts are like that windmill. We may have many talents and good intentions, but without the Holy Spirit we cannot bear lasting fruit. As we meditate on this Third Glorious Mystery, let us ask the Virgin of Revelation to obtain for us a new Pentecost, so that the divine Breath may fill our hearts and make us joyful disciples of Christ, following the example of the apostles, Bruno Cornacchiola, and the Founder Father of SACRI.

Our Father...

19.10.2026 – The Fourth Glorious Mystery: The Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary

1. An Engaging Opening Story

A grandfather often took his little granddaughter on evening walks. When darkness made her afraid, he pointed to their brightly lit house on the hill and said, “Keep your eyes on the light. As long as you can see home, you will never lose your way.” Encouraged, she walked on until they reached home safely. Our Christian life is like that journey. Heaven is our true home, and in the Assumption God gives us a shining light. Mary has already reached the destination for which every human heart was created.

2. A Gospel-Based Meditation

Although the Gospels do not describe Mary's Assumption, they reveal the life that prepared her for it. From the Annunciation she answered God with a generous “Yes.” She carried Christ to Elizabeth, welcomed Him at Bethlehem, remained faithful during His ministry, stood beneath His Cross, rejoiced in His Resurrection, and prayed with the Apostles at Pentecost.

Her whole life was one of faith, humility, and obedience. At the end of her earthly life, God assumed her body and soul into heavenly glory. In Mary we see the first complete fulfilment of Christ's victory over sin and death. She reminds us that heaven is not a dream but the destiny of all who remain faithful to Christ.

3. A Connection to the Message of the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane

At Tre Fontane, the Virgin of Revelation always pointed people to Jesus. Her message was clear: conversion, prayer, penance, fidelity to Sacred Scripture, and love for the Church. The Assumption completes that message. Mary now reigns with Christ but continues to guide her children toward heaven. Every Rosary prayed with faith, every sacrifice accepted with love, and every sincere repentance prepares us for eternal life. Like a loving mother, she continually calls us home.

4. A Reference to Bruno Cornacchiola, the Founder Father of SACRI

Bruno Cornacchiola's life reflects this hope. Before his conversion, he opposed the Catholic Church. After meeting the Virgin of Revelation, he discovered that worldly success fades, but God's grace lasts forever. As Founder Father of SACRI, he dedicated his life to leading souls to Christ. He often reminded people that every confession, every Rosary, every act of charity, and every sincere conversion brings us closer to our heavenly homeland.

5. A Practical Spiritual Application

The Assumption asks us: "Where is my heart?" It is easy to become absorbed by work, possessions, and worries, but everything on earth passes away. Mary teaches us to seek what is eternal. This week, pray the Rosary with greater devotion, receive the Sacrament of Reconciliation if needed, attend Mass with renewed love, forgive someone who has hurt you, and perform one hidden act of charity each day. These simple acts become treasures stored in heaven.

6. A Memorable Concluding Story before the Our Father

A stonemason spent years carving stones for the foundation of a cathedral. Visitors admired the towers but never saw his work. When asked if that disappointed him, he smiled and replied, "The foundation does not need applause. It only needs to remain faithful, because God sees what others cannot." Mary lived in that same hidden fidelity. She sought only God's will, and He raised her into heavenly glory. As we meditate on this Fourth Glorious Mystery, let us ask the Virgin of Revelation to keep our eyes fixed on our eternal home. May she help us remain faithful in daily life, persevere in prayer, and one day share with her the everlasting joy of heaven.

Our Father...

16.11.2026 – The Fifth Glorious Mystery: The Coronation of the Blessed Virgin Mary as Queen of Heaven and Earth

1. An Engaging Opening Story

A king announced he would honour the most faithful servant in his kingdom. Many expected a famous general or wealthy minister. Instead, he called forward an elderly woman who had quietly cared for abandoned children for many years. Placing a crown of flowers on her head, he said, “You became great because you forgot yourself in loving others.” The whole court applauded. The greatest honour was given to the one who had never sought it. This simple story helps us understand today’s glorious mystery.

2. A Gospel-Based Meditation

After completing her earthly life, Mary was assumed into heaven and crowned Queen of Heaven and Earth. Her crown was not earned by ambition but given because of her perfect faithfulness to God. Throughout the Gospel she remained humble. At the Annunciation she answered, “Behold the handmaid of the Lord.” At Cana she gave her lasting instruction: “Do whatever He tells you” (John 2:5). Beneath the Cross she remained faithful in silent love.

The Book of Revelation speaks of “a woman clothed with the sun... and on her head a crown of twelve stars” (Revelation 12:1). The Church sees in this image the fulfilment of Mary’s vocation. She reigns not through earthly power but through humble service, loving intercession, and perfect union with Christ, the King of kings.

3. A Connection to the Message of the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane

The Virgin of Revelation revealed the same spirit at Tre Fontane. She did not draw attention to herself but pointed Bruno Cornacchiola to Jesus Christ, Sacred Scripture, the Eucharist, prayer, conversion, and fidelity to the Church. Mary remains Queen because she always leads us to her Son. Like at Cana, she continues to say, “Do whatever He tells you.” Her royal mission is to guide every soul safely to Christ.

4. A Reference to Bruno Cornacchiola, the Founder Father of SACRI

Bruno Cornacchiola understood this deeply. Once an opponent of the Church, he became a courageous witness to Christ after meeting the Virgin of Revelation. As Founder Father of SACRI, he spent his life encouraging love for Scripture, the Eucharist, prayer, and faithful discipleship. Mary's crown reminded him that humble obedience always leads to eternal glory.

5. A Practical Spiritual Application

Our world encourages us to seek success and recognition. Mary teaches a different path. Every hidden act of kindness, every faithful prayer, every sacrifice offered with love, every forgiving word, and every humble service is precious before God. Like Mary, let us be faithful in ordinary duties rather than seeking extraordinary praise. If we live each day saying, “Let it be done to me according to your word,” God will prepare us for His everlasting Kingdom.

6. A Memorable Concluding Story before the Our Father

A missionary bishop once visited a remote cemetery where simple wooden crosses marked the graves of forgotten missionaries. On one cross were the words: “Known only to God.” The bishop quietly said, “That is the highest honour anyone can receive.” Those hidden servants wore no earthly crowns, yet heaven had already crowned them with eternal life.

As we pray this Fifth Glorious Mystery, let us ask the Virgin of Revelation, Queen of Heaven and Earth, to teach us humility, fidelity, and trust in God. May she always lead us to Jesus, so that when our earthly journey ends, we too may receive the unfading crown promised to all who remain faithful to Christ.

Our Father...

27.07.2026 – The First Luminous Mystery

The Baptism of Our Lord in the Jordan – "You Are My Beloved Son"

1. An Engaging Opening Story

A young eagle fell from its nest and was raised among chickens. It spent its days scratching the ground, believing it could never do more. One day, a shepherd carried the eagle to a hilltop and said, "You were made for more than this." At first it hesitated, then spread its wings and soared into the sky where it truly belonged. Nothing had changed except that it discovered its true identity. Many people live like that eagle. They allow success, failure, or the opinions of others to define them, forgetting who they are in God's eyes.

2. A Gospel-Based Meditation

In today's mystery, Jesus comes to the Jordan to be baptized by John. As He rises from the water, the heavens open, the Holy Spirit descends like a dove, and the Father declares, "You are my beloved Son; with you I am well pleased" (Mark 1:11). Before Jesus preached, healed, or performed miracles, the Father proclaimed His love. God's love comes before our achievements. The same grace was given to us at Baptism. Our sins were washed away, we became temples of the Holy Spirit, members of Christ's Body, and beloved sons and daughters of the Father. Our true identity is not found in our work, possessions, or past, but in belonging to God. Every Christian is called to live with the dignity and joy of being His beloved child.

3. A Connection to the Message of the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane

The Virgin of Revelation appeared at Tre Fontane to remind the world that God never abandons His children. She called everyone to conversion, prayer, and fidelity to Christ and His Church. Her message invites us to rediscover the grace of our Baptism. Every Sign of the Cross, every blessing with holy water, and every sincere prayer renews our awareness that we belong to God and are called to live as His faithful children.

4. A Reference to Bruno Cornacchiola, the Founder Father of SACRI

Bruno Cornacchiola had wandered far from God and opposed the Catholic Church. Through the Virgin of Revelation, he experienced the Father's mercy and his life was transformed. As Founder Father of SACRI, he devoted himself to proclaiming Christ and encouraging conversion. His life reminds us that no baptized person is beyond God's forgiveness when they return to Him with a humble heart.

5. A Practical Spiritual Application

This week, renew the grace of your Baptism. Begin each day by making the Sign of the Cross slowly and gratefully. Thank God for calling you His beloved child. Bless yourself with holy water when entering a church. Parents and godparents should remind children that their greatest dignity is not success but being loved by God. Pray also for those who feel rejected or burdened by sin, that they may hear again the Father's loving voice.

6. A Memorable Concluding Story before the Our Father

A little girl asked her grandfather, "How do I know I belong to God?" He held a small mirror toward the sun, and it reflected a bright light. "The mirror shines only because it receives the sun's light," he said. "Your soul shines because God's love lives within you. Never forget whose light you carry."

As we pray this First Luminous Mystery, let us ask the Holy Spirit to renew within us the joy of our Baptism, so that we may live each day as beloved sons and daughters of the Father, reflecting His light wherever we go.

Our Father...

24.08.2026 – The Second Luminous Mystery

The Wedding Feast at Cana – “Do Whatever He Tells You”

1. An Engaging Opening Story

A young apprentice worked with a famous stained-glass artist. Each day he handled small pieces of coloured glass and wondered how they could become anything beautiful. When the cathedral window was finished, sunlight shone through it, revealing a magnificent image of Christ. The master smiled and said, “Beauty comes when every piece is placed where the artist wants it.” Our lives often seem like scattered pieces. We see confusion and disappointment, but God sees a masterpiece still being formed.

2. A Gospel-Based Meditation

At the wedding feast of Cana (John 2:1–11), the wine ran out, bringing embarrassment to the newly married couple. Before anyone else noticed, Mary quietly brought the problem to Jesus: “They have no wine.”

She did not tell Jesus what to do but trusted Him completely. Then she spoke her last recorded words in Scripture: “Do whatever He tells you.”

These words remain Mary's message to every Christian. The servants could have questioned Jesus when He asked them to fill large jars with water, but they obeyed. Because of their simple obedience, Jesus transformed the water into the finest wine. His first public miracle shows that God works through humble trust and faithful obedience.

3. A Connection to the Message of the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane

The Virgin of Revelation gave the same message at Tre Fontane. She called people to prayer, conversion, repentance, fidelity to Sacred Scripture, and love for Christ and His Church. Like Cana, Mary always leads us to Jesus. She sees the empty jars in our lives—our worries, broken relationships, illnesses, fears, and loss of faith—and presents them to her Son. She gently repeats, “Do whatever He tells you.” When we trust Christ, He continues to transform not only our circumstances but also our hearts.

4. A Reference to Bruno Cornacchiola, the Founder Father of SACRI

Bruno Cornacchiola experienced this miracle of transformation. Once an opponent of the Catholic Church, he encountered the Virgin of Revelation, who invited him back to Jesus. He accepted her call and became a faithful witness to Christ. As Founder Father of SACRI, Bruno spent the rest of his life spreading Mary's message of prayer, reconciliation, and fidelity. His life reminds us that Christ can transform even the hardest heart through humble obedience.

5. A Practical Spiritual Application

Each of us brings empty jars to this mystery: worries about family, health, finances, loneliness, grief, or sin. Jesus asks us first to remain faithful. Continue praying when God seems silent. Forgive when it is difficult. Love without expecting a reward. Persevere in faith even during trials. When we offer Him our daily obedience, He changes fear into courage, resentment into forgiveness, and despair into hope.

6. A Memorable Concluding Story before the Our Father

A gardener planted an unattractive bulb in the ground. For months nothing appeared, and neighbours laughed. Then spring came, and a beautiful lily blossomed. The gardener simply said, “The flower was growing long before anyone could see it.” God often works in the same way. Even when we cannot yet see the fruit of our prayers, His grace is quietly at work within us. As we pray this Second Luminous Mystery, let us place every empty jar into the hands of Jesus through Mary. May we listen again to her loving words: “Do whatever He tells you.” If we obey, Christ will continue His greatest miracle—the transformation of our hearts. Our Father...

The Third Luminous Mystery: The Proclamation of the Kingdom of God and the Call to Conversion

1. An Engaging Opening Story

A traveller visited a cathedral under construction and asked three workers, “What are you doing?” The first replied, “I’m laying bricks.” The second said, “I’m earning a living.” The third smiled and answered, “I’m helping build a house for God where people will find hope.” All three did the same work, but only one saw its deeper purpose. Our daily lives are much the same. Jesus invites us to see every ordinary moment as an opportunity to build the Kingdom of God.

2. A Gospel-Based Meditation

At the beginning of His public ministry, Jesus proclaimed, “The Kingdom of God is at hand. Repent, and believe in the Gospel” (Mark 1:15). People expected a powerful earthly kingdom, but Jesus revealed a kingdom built on love, mercy, truth, and holiness.

Wherever Jesus went, the Kingdom became visible. The blind received sight, the sick were healed, sinners were forgiven, and the forgotten discovered their dignity. Yet Jesus taught that this Kingdom begins with conversion. Conversion is not only sorrow for sin but allowing Christ to transform our hearts every day. Every act of forgiveness, kindness, generosity, and self-sacrifice allows God's Kingdom to grow within us.

3. A Connection to the Message of the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane

The Virgin of Revelation brought this same Gospel message at Tre Fontane. She called people to prayer, penance, conversion, and fidelity to Jesus Christ and His Church. She reminds us that the Kingdom of God begins in the heart. Every Rosary prayed with faith, every sincere Confession, every act of charity, and every effort to live the Gospel allows Christ to reign more fully in our lives.

4. A Reference to Bruno Cornacchiola, the Founder Father of SACRI

Bruno Cornacchiola became a living witness to the transforming power of God's Kingdom. Before the apparition, he opposed the Catholic Church. After encountering the Virgin of Revelation, his life changed completely. Hatred became love, pride became humility, and opposition became faithful service. As Founder Father of SACRI, Bruno often said that the greatest miracle was not seeing Our Lady but allowing God to change one's heart. That is where the Kingdom of God truly begins.

5. A Practical Spiritual Application

This mystery invites us to ask: Is Christ truly King of my heart? We may pray faithfully and attend Mass, yet still struggle to forgive, to be patient, or to speak kindly. Jesus asks us to begin there. As St. Francis de Sales said, “Be who you are, and be that well.” Holiness grows through ordinary acts of love. Every time we choose kindness over anger, generosity over selfishness, or forgiveness over resentment, we make our homes, workplaces, and parishes places where God's Kingdom becomes visible.

6. A Memorable Concluding Story before the Our Father

During a power outage, a grandmother gave each grandchild a small candle. One boy asked, “How can this tiny candle make any difference?” She lit it and replied, “Darkness never asks how big the light is—it simply disappears wherever light shines.” Soon the whole house was filled with light. The Kingdom of God grows in the same way. It begins with one converted heart, one act of love, one sincere prayer, and one forgiving word. As we pray this Third Luminous Mystery, let us ask Jesus for the grace of true conversion. May the Virgin of Revelation lead us to welcome Christ as King of our hearts, so that His Kingdom may shine through our families, our parish, and our daily lives. Our Father...

26.10.2026 – Fourth Luminous Mystery

The Transfiguration of Our Lord – "Listen to Him."

1. An Engaging Opening Story

The great violinist Itzhak Perlman, who walked with braces after childhood polio, was once performing when a violin string snapped. Instead of stopping, he continued playing beautifully with only three strings. Afterwards he said, "Sometimes it is the artist's task to discover how much music can still be made with what is left." Life can feel like that. Illness, grief, disappointment, or broken relationships can leave us wondering where God is. Yet it is often then that He comes closest to us.

2. A Gospel-Based Meditation

Before His journey to Calvary, Jesus took Peter, James, and John up Mount Tabor. There His face shone like the sun, His clothes became dazzling white, and Moses and Elijah appeared with Him. Then the Father declared, "This is my beloved Son... Listen to Him" (Matthew 17:5). Jesus revealed His glory to strengthen the disciples before His Passion. He wanted them to know that suffering would not have the final word.

God also gives us moments of grace—a retreat, First Holy Communion, the birth of a child, or quiet prayer before the Blessed Sacrament. These are our Mount Tabor experiences, preparing us for life's trials. Peter wanted to remain on the mountain, but Jesus led the disciples back down. Faith is lived not only in moments of joy but also in the ordinary duties and struggles of daily life.

3. A Connection to the Message of the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane

The Virgin of Revelation taught the same lesson at Tre Fontane. After appearing to Bruno Cornacchiola, she did not promise an easy life but called him to prayer, conversion, and faithful service. The light he received was meant to guide his everyday life.

Likewise, every Rosary we pray strengthens us to return to our homes, workplaces, and communities with renewed faith. Mary always leads us to Jesus and reminds us to listen to His voice.

4. A Reference to Bruno Cornacchiola, the Founder Father of SACRI

Bruno's encounter with the Virgin of Revelation transformed him, but his real witness came afterwards. As Founder Father of SACRI, he faithfully served Christ in ordinary life, sharing the Gospel with humility and perseverance. He showed that true holiness is not found in extraordinary experiences but in daily fidelity to God's will.

5. A Practical Spiritual Application

Many voices compete for our attention today—fear, pride, resentment, and selfishness. The Father gives us one simple command: “Listen to Him.” Listen when Jesus says, “Do not be afraid.” Listen when He calls us to forgive, to love, and to trust. Like St. Teresa of Calcutta, who drew strength from the Eucharist to serve the poor, let us bring Christ's light into our homes, workplaces, and every encounter with others.

6. A Memorable Concluding Story before the Our Father

A hiker once carried a small lantern through a dark forest. It illuminated only a few steps ahead, yet that little light was enough to lead him safely home. He did not need to see the whole path—only the next step.

God's light often guides us in the same way. If we keep listening to Jesus, He will lead us safely through every trial.

As we pray this Fourth Luminous Mystery, let us thank God for every moment He has strengthened our faith. May the Virgin of Revelation help us carry Christ's light into ordinary life, trusting that after every Good Friday, God prepares the joy of Easter.

Our Father...

23.11.2026 – Fifth Luminous Mystery

The Institution of the Holy Eucharist – "Do This in Memory of Me."

1. An Engaging Opening Story

During the Second World War, a young soldier carried a small pyx with the Blessed Sacrament, given to him by a military chaplain. Each evening he knelt and prayed, "Lord, I do not know what tomorrow will bring, but I know You are with me." After returning home safely, people asked what had given him courage. He replied, "I never walked into battle alone. Jesus walked with me in the Eucharist."

His confidence came not from weapons, but from Christ's living presence.

2. A Gospel-Based Meditation

On the night before His Passion, Jesus gathered His apostles in the Upper Room. Taking bread, He said, "This is My Body." Then He took the chalice and declared, "This is My Blood... Do this in memory of Me." At that moment, the Last Supper became the first Holy Mass, and the apostles became the first priests entrusted with continuing Christ's sacrifice. The Eucharist is not merely a reminder of Jesus—it is Jesus Himself: His Body, Blood, Soul, and Divinity. At every Mass, the sacrifice of Calvary is made present. In every tabernacle, Christ remains with His people. In Holy Communion, He nourishes us and strengthens us for our journey to heaven.

3. A Connection to the Message of the Virgin of Revelation at Tre Fontane

The Virgin of Revelation always pointed to Jesus. At Tre Fontane she called people to conversion, prayer, fidelity to the Church, and worthy reception of the sacraments. True devotion to Mary always leads us to Christ, especially in the Holy Eucharist. Every Rosary should prepare us to participate more reverently at Mass and receive Holy Communion with faith, gratitude, and love. Mary, the first tabernacle, teaches us to welcome Jesus with humility and joy.

4. A Reference to Bruno Cornacchiola, the Founder Father of SACRI

Before his conversion, Bruno Cornacchiola denied Christ's Eucharistic presence. After encountering the Virgin of Revelation, he became a devoted witness to the Blessed Sacrament. As Founder Father of SACRI, he encouraged Eucharistic adoration, faithful Sunday Mass attendance, and frequent Holy Communion. He reminded people that the greatest miracle is not an apparition but Christ's real presence on our altars every day.

5. A Practical Spiritual Application

Let us ask ourselves: How do I come to Mass? Do I prepare my heart? Do I receive Holy Communion worthily? Do I spend time thanking Jesus afterwards? This week, make one simple resolution: spend ten minutes before the Blessed Sacrament or remain after Mass to thank Jesus. Every visit deepens our friendship with Him and transforms our hearts to love, forgive, and serve like Christ.

6. A Memorable Concluding Story Before the Our Father

After a devastating earthquake destroyed a church, the parish priest hurried to the tabernacle. Holding up the Blessed Sacrament, he told the frightened people, "Everything around us may collapse, but as long as Jesus remains with us, our greatest treasure is safe." The people knelt in silence. They realised that buildings may fall and possessions may disappear, but Christ in the Eucharist remains the unshakable foundation of every Christian life. As we pray this Fifth Luminous Mystery, may the Virgin of Revelation lead us ever closer to Jesus in the Holy Eucharist. May every Mass renew our faith, every Holy Communion strengthen our love, and every visit to the Blessed Sacrament prepare us for the eternal banquet of heaven.
